Here, fortunately, all is clear enough. Slavedom, outside of those heroic enough lavedom, outside of those heroic enough think and act for themselves, there is, political as clear as sunlight before the Presidential election. It is as clear after it, or now. Before, every slaveholding journal and statement declared, that unless the Democracy would maintain the "equality of the States," it could not said should not receive the support of the South, or of the slaveholders who, at present rule it.

After, they announced, that, unless Mr. Because as should put himself right officially uper record, on this point, the Slave-Power would resent it, and resist him and his administration calara obeys is order. For the first time, in the history of the country, he, as President of the United States, emmediates a doctrine at war with the fundamental principles of the Consti-tution—a doctrine which Washinstree, Jarran-son and Manusos would share desputed as treacherous to liberty and fatal to a free Re-public. For the first time, he, as President, declares the doctrine of the "Egnality of the States" to be essential to the Union, and viral to its perpetuity. To my simply, that this as-sumption, come whence it shall or be supported by whom it may, should be not and opposed, is to whom it may smound be not and opposed in not chough; the hopes and interests of the warra wax, of rare warra paper, demand that it shall be put down, trampled, under foot as the pretext for the establishment of an incip-lent despotism in the Republic. is upon the country. It is that party, which leaning upon and looking for aid, from the Slave-Power, shoulders its load and does it poor and base work. To talk as Mr. Buchanas poor and base work. To talk as Mr. Bouravax does, about "the agitation of the Slavery Quasition having searly ceased," is suprement folly, and insolent someone. To pretend that "for the first time in twenty years, the country has arrived at peace on this subject." Is a mad mockery of frush and a reckless inself to the Intelligence of the country. His inaugural will wake it up into serger life, and he knows it. The new and infamous doctrine " of the Equality of Slates," which he declares, "sums be preserved," will give it a depth declares, "must be preserved," will give it a dept and breadth and sweep which will sink it deeps into the hearts of the people, and flood the land with a wider and more resistless agitation.
